Dear Sezgi,

My name is Megan Phillips and I am the Business Manager at Albany Creek State School.

Future Fitouts was the company that won the tender to renovate our internal Year 1 Teaching Block.

The school's Year 1 Teaching Block was built in the 1970's and was in need of an internal renovation to provide a great learning environment for our students. The internal of this block, had concertina doors in each classroom, which meant the sound would travel between rooms; a ceiling that had conduits running all over it; lights that if were turned off in one room, would also turn off in another room; power points and data outlets that were on a pole in the room; and no storage space, which were just a few issues.

I had never worked with Future Fitouts before, and after working with them, I would definitely recommend them for future projects.

Mr Tom Ferguson, who was the project manager from Future Fitouts, was very easy to communicate with and very willing and helpful. Whenever we had any questions or concerns, Tom promptly replied back to us. He understood, as a school, we had over 850 students attending here everyday. So he organised deliveries to arrive outside school hours, and if that was not possible, he always contacted us to let us know, so we could move students away.

Ms Emily Stewart, who helped with the designing of the joinery and colour scheme of the room, was always willing to listen and take on board our requests, even down to the height of shelves and requesting drawers in cupboards to store cardboard. She would continually make contact with us and provide great advice and make sure our requests, if possible could be actioned.

All the workers on site were professional and courtesy we had no issues with any of them. All rubbish was removed from site and I even liked that the temporary fencing around the site, contained health and safety quotes.

The school is only days away from having the official handover back to the school, but already staff are eager to get back to their renovated rooms and start teaching. They are so impressed with the rooms, which include fixed walls with a sliding door in between, new windows letting in additional light; an amazing amount of storage space with new carpet, paint and a new ceiling.

I would happily recommend Future Fitouts to any businesses or schools. Their professionalism, communication and willing to take on board our requests and understanding our needs were outstanding.

Yours faithfully,

Megan Phillips
